COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS ORDERS BOND SET

Ziglar free on $300,000 bond pending appeal

by Marvin McIlwain
Editor

Last Friday afternoon, in accordance with an order from the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals, Owen Ziglar was released after posting a $300,000 bond.

Prior to Friday's hearing, Ziglar had twice before been denied bond by Circuit Judge John Crawley following his conviction of manslaughter in the shotgun slaying of Edward Kelley.

Ziglar was arrested and charged with murder on January 30, 1990 after Kelley was found shot to death at his residence near Elba. Kelley was shot through the door of his noble home and died instantly.

During Ziglar's murder trial in June of 1991, which lasted for more than three days, a jury found him guilty of the lesser included offense of manslaughter.

On June 11 following a sentencing hearing, Judge Crawley sentenced Ziglar to 20 years in prison and 60 hours per week at hard labor. Attorney Jackson W. Stokes, Ziglar's court appointed defense attorney, filed an appeal on his behalf.

Crawley denied Ziglar's request for an appeal bond and Stokes was relieved by the court of his responsibilities as Ziglar's court appointed attorney.

In denying Ziglar's bond, Crawley said, "This court has reason to believe that an appearance bond will not reasonably assure that the defendant will not flee. This court also has a strong and abiding belief that the defendant poses a real and present danger to harm Doug Taylor and Merlene Kelley."

Taylor and Kelley, according to testimony, had had an affair with the defendant's wife, Donna Ziglar. Also, Merlene Kelley testified that Ziglar (Owen) had threatened her.

Shortly after Ziglar's sentencing, Stafford Pittman and Rodger Brannum were appointed as co-counsel to represent him in any future court appearances.

In a hearing held on June 24th, Crawley once again denied Ziglar bond stating that his reasons were the same as before for not allowing his release.

Pittman and Brannum appealed Crawley's decision to the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals.

On Wednesday, July 24, an order was received by Judge Crawley from the Court of Criminal Appeals ordering him to set reasonable bond for the defendant within 48 hours.

During the hearing last Friday which began at 8:30 a.m., the defense attorneys called witnesses to testify on Ziglar's behalf.

When asked by Ziglar's attorneys if they felt that he was a threat to the community, they all replied, "No, they did not."

Assistant District Attorney Al Smith contended that the "community" had not had an affair with Ziglar's wife, Donna.

When asked by Judge Crawley what they, the state's and defense attorneys, thought was meant by "reasonable" bond, the defense attorneys replied was $750 to $7,500. Their answer was based on the schedule of recommended bond for the offense of manslaughter.

District Attorney Smith told the judge that he felt that a minimum bond of $250,000 should be set and added that he didn't feel, in this case, that $1 million would be unreasonable.

Prior to setting the bond amount, Crawley made it clear that his opinion had not changed but he was compelled to adhere to the Court of Criminal Appeals's order.

In addition to the $300,000 bond, Ziglar was further ordered not to leave the state of Alabama, not to drink any alcoholic beverages, even at home, not to possess any weapons, and not to communicate or remain in the presence of Doug Taylor or Merlene Kelley.

The judge further stipulated that any order by the Alabama Supreme Court concerning whether the defendant was or was not entitled to bond would be adhered to.

Also, the Sheriff of Coffee County was ordered to delay returning Ziglar to Kilby Prison in Montgomery until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, July 26th.

Shortly after 3:30 p.m., Ziglar was released on $300,000 bond after seven (7) individuals agreed to sign it on his behalf.

Ziglar will remain free on bond until his appeal of the manslaughter conviction is heard and acted on by the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals.

UNITED WAY--CARING FOR THE WIREGRASS. Mayor Fred Moore signed a proclamation proclaiming Sunday, August 11, 1991 United Way Sunday and the months of August, September and October as "United Way--Caring For The Wiregrass" in the City of Elba. The mayor called upon all citizens of Elba to participate to the limit of their capacity in helping the "UNITED WAY - Caring for the Wiregrass." Looking on as Mayor Moore (seated) signed the document were (standing L-R): Kin Farris, Chairman of the Wiregrass United Way Board of Directors; Waylon Sharpless and Dr. Tim Alford, co-chairmen of the 1992 Coffee County general campaign for the Wiregrass United Way.

Elba's Water & Electric Board plans million dollar expansion

by Ferrin Cox
Publisher

The Elba Water & Electric Board met Monday night and reviewed plans for a million dollar expansion and upgrade of the city's water system.

Elba homes and businesses are using an average of 900,000 gallons of water daily. The improved system will store 950,000 gallons; improve well supplies, improving pumping; provide better back-up pumping when electric power is lost, solve several potential fire fighting problems and in general improve water supply and quality to all citizens.

As explained by Mr. Lynn Mitchell, with the firm of Peters-Mitchell, the work should solve several problems.

"Supply enough water on the West side of town."

"Supply enough water to Klei-ner's and others in the Industrial Park for normal operations and fire protection."

"Improve the water pressure and quality to users on the New Brockton Highway lines."

"Supply better quality water and better water pressure in the Smith Avenue area. This includes adequate fire protection on the lower part of Smith Avenue."

"Improve the insurance rating for the entire town."

The present 100,000 tank on Red-dock Hill will no longer be used, with the 84 East tank better serving these needs.

The engineer explained the higher elevation of the tank at the city limits made it much more desirable and economical than continuing to use the Reddock Hill tank.

The pumps at each of four water wells will be equipped with PTO drives to insure operation with any tractor in case of complete power failure and a malfunction of the gasoline generators.

Mitchell explained that the improvements are designed to eliminate most of the repumping of water. Presently 98% of the city water is being pumped at least twice (into storage tanks and again to the customers). The improvements, which include higher elevation storage tanks, will drop the repumping to 2% of the total. This means five pumping stations will no longer be needed.

Only two pumping booster pumps will remain in the system after the improvements are completed.

The cost of the project is expected to exceed $1.3 million and work should be underway by late fall. It will take at least six months to complete the project. Mitchell assured board members the project will be complete before the new school needs the additional water supply.

A new 300,000 gallon elevated tank will be built on the West side of town, near the new schools. An additional well will also be drilled in this area.

A new 12 inch water main will feed into the existing system from this new tank on the Opp Highway and will furnish more than the 1,300 gallons at 65 lb psi needed by Klei-ner's for fire protection. This need has been a continuing headache for the utility and Klei-ner's officials. Insurance inspections in the past have found the pressure low or the fire pumps inoperative on numerous occasions. The pressure will now be constant and the pumps no longer needed.

The tank will be supported on 133 feet high legs and combined with the land elevation will be at 500 feet above sea level. Work East of town includes erection of a 150,000 gallon elevated tank on a site near the city limits. An additional six inch water line will be installed from this tank all the way back into downtown. Mitchell explained this would better serve the Smith Avenue area and the adjoining areas.

There are several members of the unit which served in Operation Desert Storm which are from this area.

The public is invited to attend Sunday afternoon and show their support and gratitude to the troops.

Mrs. Paul welcomed the guests and invited them into her home where lovely arrangements of freshly cut roses from the garden of Erlene Poole added to its elegance. The ladies enjoyed a delicious plate of afternoon tea sandwiches and cookies served with frosty lemonade.

Other guests enjoying the afternoon of renewed and new friendships with Susan were her mother and sisters, Janet, Catherine and Amy King of Marietta, Georgia; Blair's mother, Sidney Smith of Fernandina Beach; Susan's grandmother, Irma Warr of Elba; and a friend, Patsy Whitfield of Fernandina Beach.

It was with sadness and gloom that the Senior Citizens of Cordelia Street met at the center on Factory Street, Thursday, July 25, Ms. Boling was not with us. She is in Birmingham with her sick husband. We are hoping they will soon be back home. A special prayer was prayed for them. Also, several of our members were out for various reasons. Our oldest active member, Zedie Bouyer, will celebrate her 87th birthday on Saturday, so a belated birthday greeting to her. Members played domino and visited. Since we have not met but a few times this month, there was lots of news to catch up on. A delicious lunch was served to the following: Myrl Burkett, Bonnie Westley, Mattie Lou Goodson, Ruthie Blanton, Alene English, Arnold Amenda, Iris McDowell, Cora McBride, Arthur Blackmon, Marion Brunson, Sarah Smith and Josephine, and Wanda Sasser.

TWO MINUTES WITH THE BIBLE

BY CONNELL R. STAN, PRES. ELBA AREA SOCIETY CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60635

THE CHRISTIAN HOME

"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord" (Josh. 24:15).

There is no place in all this world so wholesome and refreshing as a Christian home, a home where Christ is truly loved and honored.

This writer was brought up in such a home. There were ten of us: Dad, Mother, and eight children. There was lots doing all the time, but a truly happy home it was. For Dad and Mother never let us get so busy with temporal things that we brushed eternal values aside.

On the basis that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God" (Luke 4:4), we read some small portion of the Bible before every meal, and had family devotions before retiring at night.

Result: All eight children blessed the dear Dad and Mother who led them right, morally and spiritually, and best of all taught them the importance of trusting in the Saviour who died for all our sins. More, five of the children and many of the grandchildren gave themselves to full-time Christian service, and became pastors, Christian college deans, Christian writers and missionaries in various parts of the world.

Counting the offspring, there are now more than 100 of us and the divorces and broken homes that have brought sorrow to so many are not even known among us.

This is not because we are one whit better than others, but because we experienced the help and grace of God in our lives. But it all began one day when a young American, like Joshua of old, came to a decision and declared: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

BIRTH

KENDALL LAVON CHAPPELL

Lavon and Wendy Chappell announce the birth of a son, Kendall Lavon, on Friday, June 14, 1991 at 5:33 p.m. at Humana Hospital in Enterprise. He weighed 5 pounds 4 ounces and was 18 1/2 inches long.

Grandparents are L. M. and Mavis Burch and Pete and Susan Nelson and Patsy Baxwell of Tulsa, OK.

Rev. Kirkland said, "We have received comfort and assurance from the Bible regarding our move. II Corinthians 12:14 says, 'the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.' We are excited about being back."

Who needs an alarm clock? A lot of folks say they couldn't exist without an alarm clock, but such is not the case at the Mularz house, where we've got two kids, a dog, a cat and a telephone that rings almost non-stop. One night last week I went to bed around 11:00 p.m., woke up at 2:30 a.m. from the cat meowing at our bedroom window, at 3:00 a.m. from the dog barking at a cat and then again at 4:00 a.m. from the baby crying to get in the bed with Mom and Dad. After everything got quiet I just curled up at the end of the bed and caught a nap until 6:30, when it was time to get ready for work. A clock? Forget it!

BABE RUTH ALL-STARS FALL IN FINALS

The Elba Babe Ruth League's 13-year-old All-Stars appeared to have a trip to the Southeast United States regional tournament almost wrapped up last week after winning two straight games at the state tournament, but got upset in the final round and for the second time in three years had to settle for second place in the state.

Pitching was the key for the All-Stars in the opening two games at the state tournament as the Elba pitchers walked a total of only 3 batters in two games; however, in the final two losses the pitchers did an about-face and delivered a total of 28 free passes (14 in each game), and combined with the inability to get key hits, the combination proved fatal.

In the 9-8 ten-inning loss to Bay Minette, Elba stranded 14 baserunners, including men on first and second with no outs in both the eighth and ninth innings. The All-Stars ripped the ball in every game they played, but they just couldn't get the key hits to knock in the runs when a hit might have meant the state title.

I know the players and coaches are still upset over the loss in the finals; however, the All-Stars played well and represented Elba well throughout the tournament. The All-Stars defeated a solid Opp team in the district, then showed Tallahassee where Elba was as they stunned the four-time defending state champs 7-0. Elba may not have won the war, but they sure battled and let folks from across the state know that the kids in Elba can play baseball!

FOOTBALL GETTING CLOSER BY THE DAY

I'm still trying to catch my breath after a five-month long baseball season and now you tell me high school football is just around the corner!

That's right, high school football practice starts August 12 and three weeks later it will time for the opening week of the season. There have been some changes in the local coaching ranks (Leavy Boutwell at Florala and Donny Rogers at Hartford), but most of the head men are still the same and things should be as expected.

Here are a few interesting openers - Daleville at Elba, Beulah at New Brockton, Cottonwood at Rehobeth, Pike County at Greenville, Opp at Monroe County and Jess Lanier at Robert E. Lee.

I guess this means that football is already here!

Record number of cars race at SAMS

A record number of cars took to the track Saturday night at the South Alabama Motor Speedway for another big night of short-track stock car racing.

Seventy-eight cars competed in the five classes and a large crowd was on hand for the heat races and the always exciting features.

In the PURE STOCK feature, which drew a field of 27 cars, Entor-prise's Darrell Cawley took the checkered flag ahead of Elba's

Ricky Rogers and Prattville's Butch Helms.

The SUPER STOCK feature drew 14 cars and claiming first place was Babbie's Tony Davis, followed by Babbie's Shorty Short and Donny Rogers.

The LATE MODEL feature was a 10-car event, with the checkered flag going to Andalusia's Nate Davis, followed by Dothan's Mike Henderson and Dothan's Stan Elliott.

13-year-old All-Stars fall in state finals

The Elba Babe Ruth League's 13-year-old All-Stars fell one win short of their goal last week at the State Babe Ruth baseball Tournament and had to settle for the runner up spot in the annual state tournament, held at Johnson Park, in Andalusia.

The All-Stars rolled past Tallahassee 7-0 and Bay Minette 9-3 in the opening rounds, but then fell to Bay Minette 9-8, in 10 innings, and 6-4, to place second in the six-team event.

Bay Minette will now advance to the Southeast Regional, set for Gadsden, and will meet Mississippi in the opening round.

"We are all tremendously disappointed in not winning the state tournament," stated Elba's manager Robert Bowen. "The kids played great at district and in the opening two wins at state, and had several chances to win the state tournament in the opening game that went 10 innings. We just didn't take advantage of our opportunities and let the state title slip out of our hands."

"The kids played great at district and in the opening two wins at state, and had several chances to win the state tournament in the opening game that went 10 innings. We just didn't take advantage of our opportunities and let the state title slip out of our hands."

The Elba Babe Ruth League's 13-year-old All-Stars fell one win short of their goal last week at the State Babe Ruth baseball Tournament and had to settle for the runner up spot in the annual state tournament, held at Johnson Park, in Andalusia.

The All-Stars rolled past Tallahassee 7-0 and Bay Minette 9-3 in the opening rounds, but then fell to Bay Minette 9-8, in 10 innings, and 6-4, to place second in the six-team event.

Bay Minette will now advance to the Southeast Regional, set for Gadsden, and will meet Mississippi in the opening round.

"We are all tremendously disappointed in not winning the state tournament," stated Elba's manager Robert Bowen. Following are highlights of last week's final two games:

BAY MINETTE 9 ELBA 8

The Elba All-Stars stranded 14 baserunners, including six in the three extra innings, in a heartbreaking 9-8, 10-inning loss to Bay Minette.

Bay Minette jumped out to an early 3-0 lead and appeared to be in complete command with a 5-1 lead heading into the bottom of the seventh, only to see Elba rally to tie the game and almost pull out the win.

Elba, which had left the bases loaded in the sixth, got a spark to open the seventh when Will Oges singled to right and raced to third on a double by Chris Tyson.

A one-out single by Eddie Cowen knocked in both Oges and Tyson and chopped the lead to 5-3, while Rudy Free reached on an error and both runners advanced on a balk by the Bay Minette pitcher.

Todd Grantham delivered a clutch single that knocked in both Cowen and Free and Elba was even at 5-5 with one out in the seventh!

Elba stranded Grantham, but was still alive as the game headed into the eighth inning with the score tied at 5-5.

Chris Hudson singled to open the eighth for Elba and moved to second on a walk to Shane Bragg, giving the All-Stars runners on first and second with no outs.

Wood Floors: Staying One Step Ahead

Angela G. Hughes
County Agent

Wood floors can be easily maintained and kept looking new far longer than many other floorings because wood surfaces do not fade and can be successfully protected and refinished.

Frequent vacuuming and dusting remove grit and dirt that, once ground into wood, could force premature resanding.

Biyearly waxing contributes to the appearance and condition of wood floors. The wax of heavily traveled areas wears thin sooner, calling for additional treatments. Wax forms a barrier that prevents spills from penetrating the finish. A liquid wax/cleaner combination with a solvent base can do the job quickly. Be sure to use only products designed for wood floors, because products for other flooring may contain water that can stain and raise the grain of wood.

The liquid wax/cleaner can be applied with a long-handled pad mop.

Follow the products directions for best results. As the pads become soiled, replace them. Spread the wax in a thin coat. The wax will dry to a harder film, provide more protection against grit and can be buffed to a higher sheen.

Here are a few tips to reduce damage to your wood floors and return them to their original luster.

ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES: Rub the soiled area with a cloth dampened in a solution of detergent and warm water. If the stain removes, rub it with a different cloth dampened with rubbing alcohol.

DRIPS FROM WET BOOTS, CLOTHING AND UMBRELLAS: These and other light colored stains caused by water can be removed by rubbing the spots with a fine grade of steel wool. Then re wax areas.

BLACK HEEL MARKS: Whether it's from children playing, dancing or just plain heavy walking, rub the marks with a fine grade of steel wool dipped in mineral spirits and squeezed nearly dry. After that treatment, re wax.

FUTURE LEADERS GATHER - Representing Coffee County at the 1991 Alabama Youth Leadership Conference were, from left, Shawn Wilkins of New Brockton; Coffee County Extension Agent Charlotte Martin of Enterprise; chairman, Kenneth Griffin of New Brockton; and Sandra Carley and Jeremy Law, both of Zion Chapel. The conference was held June 10-12 at the Alabama 4-H Center in Shelby County. The annual event is sponsored by the Young Farmers Division of the Alabama Farmers Federation and is designed to help Alabama youths develop in the area of leadership, citizenship and self-motivation. The Coffee County delegates, sponsored by the Coffee County Farmers Federation, were among about 100 teens from throughout the state participating in this year's conference. The conference agenda featured motivational speakers, workshops and recreational activities.

Hog Ride For The United Way Planned

The Wiregrass Harley-Davidson Owners' Group, or H.O.G., is sponsoring the second annual motorcycle "Ride for the Wiregrass" to benefit the United Way, on Saturday, August 10. A police escort will accompany the riders as they leave Dothan and travel through Headland, Abbeville, Ozark, Daleville, Enterprise, and Geneva.

The cost of the poker-run style ride is a $10.00 donation/bike to the Wiregrass United Way. Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m. at Dothan Harley-Davidson. The ride will begin at 9:00 a.m. All bikes are invited to participate in this fun-filled day to benefit the Wiregrass United Way.

WHITE-TAIL DEER TELECONFERENCE

Seven million dollars is what a recent study showed is spent each year on deer management and deer hunting activities in each county. In order to properly use this amount of money, accurate and scientifically tested information can be gotten through a satellite program which will be aired August 13 at 6:30 p.m. We have the capability of downlinking educational programs. A white-tail deer teleconference will be shown in the Community Room at the Farm Center in New Brockton, there will be handout materials given at this teleconference. If you are interested in deer management, you need to attend.

For those of you who have downlinking capabilities, the program will be on WestStar Channel 17.

COFFEE COUNTY FARMERS FEDERATION ANNUAL MEETING

Philip Martin, president of the Farmers Federation, tells me that there is an exciting program planned for the annual meeting this year. The Miss Agriculture Contest is always a highlight along with some super entertainment each year. There is a host of door prizes to be given that are Coffee County produced commodities. The annual meeting will be August 9 at 6:30 at the Enterprise High School Auditorium.

FALL CARE OF PEACH TREES

Your peach trees may need fertilizing this time of year. As soon as you have harvested your peaches, you may need to fertilize your trees with an additional amount of Nitrogen. If your trees look healthy, you may want to apply just a half pound of Ammonium Nitrate per tree. If the tree looks like it is under a great deal of stress because of its strength being drained by the fruit crop, you will want to apply one pound of Ammonium Nitrate per tree. This amount would be 100 pounds per acre.

This is also the time of year to spray for peach tree borers. The borers are already out and doing a great deal of damage. The recommended spray for them is Thiodan SOWP at 2.1 per gallon of water or Lorsban at the labeled rate for the first spray which should be around July 15. The second spray should be around August 15 and the third spray should be around September 15. You need to thoroughly soak the trunk and limbs up to about 2 feet up and then spray the soil at the base of the tree. A handgun sprayer works well. Weed control around your trees is very important in borer control. This spray material is also very helpful for white peach scale control.

MIXING BRAVO WITH OTHER CHEMICALS

A question I am often asked is, "Can I mix Bravo spray with different herbicides?" Spraying Bravo with a herbicide could save an extra trip across your fields, but in some cases just makes for extra problems.

As a general rule of thumb, you should never add Bravo to a herbicide that requires crop oil. One of the main chemicals that you can add Bravo to is, of course, Butoxone, as long as you do not add an oil to this mix. You can also add Bravo to your Classic spray as long as there is not sulfur in the Bravo. The herbicides that you would not want to mix Bravo with are Starfire, Blazer, Basagran, Poast, or Poast Plus. When mixing your tank mix, it is best to first mix your herbicide and then add your Bravo.

CLASSIC AND REPLANTING RESTRICTIONS

It just want to remind peanut growers that there is a replant restriction with Classic.

Before making a Classic application, review the re-cropping interval for planting subsequent crops. With small grains there is a 3-month interval and an 8-month interval with corn. If your spray Classic, for example, on July 15 wait until October 15 to plant your small grains and March 15 on your corn. Do not ignore these re-cropping restrictions, unless you want to risk not getting a stand. Some growers have tried to fudge these restrictions and have suffered poor stands. This is certainly a big factor to consider before using Classic.

Don't Fuss At The Cow Or Sow - The Male Decides The Sex

Stan Windham
Associate County Agent

It is quite often on farm visits that I hear someone say that a particular female always gives them a bull calf or a female horse always gives them a filly and so on. The interesting part is the female does not decide the sex, really but is only a participant with half of the genetic material of the calf. The male, because of his chromosome makeup, decides really what sex the offspring will be. The female chromosomes are designated by an XX. In other words, they are similar in the female. On males one chromosome is like that of the female and is also called X and the other is designated as a Y. Therefore, the male is what we call genotype XY.

Nobody really knows how the X and Y chromosomes differ. Most scientists that study this sort of thing agree that the chromosomes are different in a man or male animal whereas the female chromosomes are similar or alike.

There is an exception to this rule which is the only one I know of in domestic animals, and that is in poultry. The reverse is true. The males XX chromosomes and XY is the female. Most poultry scientists use a different terminology, though, called ZZ and ZW for the female.

At conception there is a 50/50 chance that a male will give an X carrying sperm or a Y carrying sperm. Therefore, when a female gives half of her genetic material in the form of an egg, she gives an X chromosome. If the sperm cell that fertilizes the egg is Y, the fetus will develop as a male. If a sperm is carrying an X chromosome and the female has already given her X chromosome again in the form of an egg, once they unite the fetus will develop as a female.

There have been all kinds of theories in animal genetics that certain situations will produce more males, more females, and so on. As of this writing, there is no known scientific basis for this belief. Basically, at conception it is a 50/50 chance.

There is no doubt, however, that certain sires produce more males than females. For example, in the dairy industry you like a bull that sires a high percentage of heifers because they are used to produce the milk. Commercial swine producers and cow-calf producers like a nice mixture so they can not only choose replacement females but they also know that the sires and barrows are going to yield more pounds in most situations.

When selecting bulls, boars, stallions, and this type thing, most breed associations have a progeny record of these animals. In many cases, you can find out from the breeder how many males and how many females in terms of percentage that a particular individual in that breed is likely to sire.

If you have any questions related to animal reproduction, we will be glad to help you out. Give us a call at 894-5596.

Ice Cream Is A Tasty Dessert

Sandra T. Coffey
County Agent

Ice cream is America's favorite dessert, the working woman's answer to a delicious quick treat, and a child's delight.

Federal standards state that ice cream must contain at least 10% milk fat and 20% total milk solids and weight must be 4.5 pounds per gallon.

Homemade ice cream has a different texture and flavor than commercial ice cream. Stabilizers and emulsifiers are added to commercial varieties. The stabilizers stop the formation of large crystals and slow down the melting process. Both have air beaten into them to prevent ice cream from freezing too hard. Quick freezing of the ice cream makes a smoother product. Commercial dairies have a greater ability to quick freeze than we in home freezers.

Ice cream can be stored in the home freezer compartment of your refrigerator for 2 to 3 weeks. A deep freezer kept at 0 degrees F will keep the ice cream for up to 2 months.

Excellent ice cream can be made in the home freezer if you follow some or all of the following suggestions:

*Do's and Don'ts...

*Never try to freeze warm mix.

*Cooling the freezer container and dasher cuts down on freezing time.

*Only fill freezer 2/3 full to allow for expansion.

*Protect working area from salt damage. Salt is a corrosive and kills grass.

*Use a wooden spoon for stirring and repacking because it does not conduct heat. It will reduce melting.

*Use crushed ice to provide a uniform cold and even melt.

*Place waxed paper or cellophane on top surfaces of ice cream to avoid drying out. Seal and place in freezer.

*Can keep frozen up to 3 months if properly stored.

*Move ice cream from freezer to refrigerator for 30 minutes to one hour (depending on size of container) to mellow-up. Hard frozen ice cream has less taste than mellowed ice cream.

*Try the following ice cream recipe during these hot summer days:

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM
2 can sweetened condensed milk
1 quart mashed peaches
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 carton whipped topping
Combine all ingredients. Add milk to fill line on one-gallon freezer.

Optional: Change fruit to strawberries, blueberries, bananas, etc.

REHABILITATION RESTORES ATHLETIC ABILITY

Every football player knows that there is a good possibility he will get injured at some point in his career. For Freddy Marshall, 16, of Dothan, that point came during his senior year at Houston Academy.

"It was the fourth game of the season. We were playing against Kinston at Kinston. I made a tackle and when I went to stand up, I couldn't. My left knee wouldn't support me, but it didn't really hurt. It was weird, I'm not really sure what happened, I think someone must have fallen on top of me during the tackle," he explained.

He remembered his head hurting more than his knee, but shortly after James P. Maddox, M.D., the orthopedic surgeon traveling with the team, taped the knee. Freddy said he started feeling nauseated. His parents, David and Renate Marshall borrowed a van and drove him to the Emergency Department at Southeast Alabama Medical Center.

Freddy, 17 at the time of his injury, was met there by R. Bruce Hall, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon in practice with Dr. Maddox. "Dr. Hall told us that if there was no swelling during the first few days, or if there was swelling but the fluid that was drawn off was clear, then everything would be okay. But two days after the game, his knee began swelling and when the fluid was drawn off there was blood in it," Mrs. Marshall offered.

Due to the continued swelling, and the bloody fluid, an MRI (magnetic resonance imaging) was ordered. Subsequently, he was scheduled for diagnostic arthroscopy which revealed the anterior cruciate ligament had been torn.

Ten days after Freddy's injury, Dr. Hall performed arthroscopically assisted reconstruction of the torn ligament. Although just discharged and still in a wheelchair, Freddy insisted on being present at the next game. "I didn't want to miss any games and, as things turned out, although I was never able to return to the field that year, I was still present at every game," he said with a grin.

The day after his surgery, rehabilitation was started. "I had to go to physical therapy twice a week for awhile. The exercises - bike riding and leg lifts - hurt while I was doing them, but my knee felt better after each therapy session. I knew I was strengthening my knee," he said.

Pain-free today, Freddy occasionally uses a knee brace. He has full range of motion in the joint and continues to work on increasing strength and endurance. Again an active athlete, he plays golf, basketball, tag football and fishes.

Although he is certainly on the road to recovery - his recent catch of a 356-pound blue marlin attests to the fact - Freddy said he doubts he will ever play football with the same drive he had in high school. "I know my knee is okay now, but there is a tendency to still favor it. I don't want to reinjure it," he said. "Dr. Hall has told us that eventually Freddy will be able to do everything he could do before his injury," Mrs. Marshall said, noting her son has been very determined throughout his rehabilitation to return to his pre-injury level of athletic ability.

And as far as that game against Kinston, "We creamed them!" Freddy said. Houston Academy downed Kinston 36 - 0.

HENRY H. BARNARD, II, M.D.

SPORTS MEDICINE CHANGES AS ATHLETES PUSH PAST LIMITS

"Most people think of catastrophic injuries when they think of sports medicine when in reality, most of sports medicine is sprains, strains and torn ligaments," explained Henry H. Barnard, II, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon with Dothan Orthopedic Associates, P.C.

Education has played a very important role in today's emphasis on early recognition and proper assessment of a player's condition. "Players are no longer immediately sent back out on the field after an injury because coaches are learning how to better recognize when an injury is not a simple injury," Dr. Barnard said.

The focus of the upcoming Sports Health '91 conference scheduled for August 6 at Southeast Alabama Medical Center is to continue the education process particularly for the more common injuries and treatments while helping coaches develop an instinct for recognizing non-specific injuries that demand physician attention.

"It is absolutely imperative that coaches recognize when an injury is not a simple injury," Dr. Barnard stressed. "Any injury that involves the back or neck needs to be seen by a physician because the injury implications can be very serious and we are not allowed the leeway on back and neck injuries that we have with other parts of the body," he noted.

Anticipating injuries is not always easy. In some cases, predisposed conditions exist that could lead to sports injuries but are not discovered until the time of injury.

"Sometimes there is just no way of foreseeing problems before they occur but a keen awareness of problems and potential problems helps," Dr. Barnard said.

While the majority of sports injuries occur in contact sports, injuries and predisposed conditions occur in all sports and athletes, including gymnastics, baseball and other technically classified non-contact sports. "One way for sports trainers to recognize the potential severity of an injury is to listen carefully to complaints made by athletes. When an athlete complains, it is important to understand the possibilities and that a serious condition could exist if the complaints continue," he said.

Emphasizing once an injury does occur, "there is absolutely no criteria for when an athlete can return to the sport," he noted. "It is important at the high school level that athletes receive guidance and proper conditioning ahead of time to reduce the risk of injury."

Treatment of sports injuries has changed through the years according to Dr. Barnard. "The emphasis now is more on participation in rehabilitation versus bed rest. Standard treatment today is: Get it moving, strengthen it. The benefits of rest are short lived because you can lose strength even after one week of bed rest and that slows the rehab process."

Physical therapy, he added, "energizes the player."

Dr. Barnard cautioned, "To avoid placing themselves in a position of liability, even the most knowledgeable sports medicine trained coach should not make decisions about the severity of injuries and when it is appropriate for an athlete to return to the field. Even physicians are careful to explain the facts and the options to the athlete and the family and allow them to make a decision about continuing a sports career."

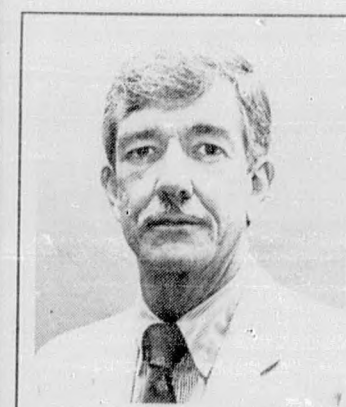

Sports medicine, he explained, continues to evolve as the number and type of injuries increases. "Sports medicine has changed through the years. We are seeing injuries today that were never seen years ago, and we are seeing more and more of those injuries primarily because the human body is being pushed beyond its biological tissue limits."

"Steroids, for example, are known to change a person's level of aggressiveness, which means that person will be able to tolerate pain better and ultimately ignore warning signs," he said.

Dr. Barnard, a sports medicine physician for the Atlanta Falcons while completing his residency, stressed, "Athletes are sacrificing their body and long-term health for money and fame. Despite the sobering results of longitudinal studies that are being compiled on football players alone, I don't see the end. It is not even something we can influence," Dr. Barnard is in practice with Drs. James C. Owen, Jr., Ronald K. Randall, Robert W. Moore and J. Bret Simpson.

REHABILITATION SERVICES' GOAL - RESUME AS NORMAL A lifestyle AS possible

To those who have experienced a temporary or permanent disability, rehabilitation services often means the difference between merely learning to cope with that disability and resuming a near normal lifestyle.

Southeast Alabama Medical Center, a 400-bed regional referral center in Dothan, Al., offers a three-pronged therapeutic approach to rehabilitation. "Our three available therapy disciplines - physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy - provide comprehensive rehabilitation services for patients who have suffered from an injury or illness that could have resulted in a temporary or permanent disability," said Joyce Fendley, division director of Rehabilitation Services.

Explaining the goal of all rehabilitation therapy is to help the patient resume as normal a lifestyle as possible, Mrs. Fendley, a registered physical therapist, noted therapists not only work closely with the patient's physician throughout rehabilitation but with family as well so that treatment can be carried out at home. "Rehab is an intricate component of the recovery process. Our services are based on a team-oriented approach to maximize results; it takes a joint effort with everyone playing a very important part," she added.

Mrs. Fendley offered the following rehabilitation scenario as an example:

Patient X was involved in a vehicular accident Saturday evening. He fractured several ribs, a wrist and pelvis. Following orthopedic surgery on his wrist and pelvis Sunday, he was scheduled for physical therapy as soon as he was medically stable. Monday, just two days after the accident, Patient X was ready to begin rehabilitation. In the Physical Therapy Department he was evaluated and started on an assisted gait training regimen and a restricted exercise program as outlined by his physician. While he was again mastering walking skills and exercising to build range of motion skills, strength and endurance, Patient X also received instruction from an occupational therapist on how to exercise his wrist, as well as how to bathe and dress. Soon after rehabilitation was started, his family was involved in the process so that they might learn how to offer assistance without hindering rehabilitation. Upon discharge four weeks later, Patient X had achieved all major rehabilitation goals, but was instructed to return to physical therapy on an outpatient basis to refine those skills to his level of ability prior to the accident.

"Rehabilitation is started as soon as possible after a patient is medically stable to minimize strength and endurance loss which would occur rather quickly if a patient were allowed to remain in bed. How fast a patient is rehabilitated depends largely on the extent of the injury, the patient's determination and motivation level," Mrs. Fendley said.

Family support is important throughout any recovery, but for those patients who require rehabilitation as part of their recovery process, it is critical. "I cannot stress enough how important family involvement is. It is necessary that through out the process family members understand the patient's abilities and limitations, as well as the techniques being used to rehabilitate the patient."

Noting the goal of physical therapy is restoration of function, she explained, "Patients who are referred to us for this type of therapy may need to resume the ability to walk, regain the full range of motion in their joints, relieve temporary painful conditions, or when a patient is dealing with chronic pain, work toward increasing strength in weak muscles."

Physical therapy also provides education for home therapy programs and preventative programs - conditioning. This discipline accomplishes its goals through the use of patient-tailored exercises and physical modalities such as heat, ice, electrical stimulation and hydrotherapy.

"Occupational therapy, on the other hand, is primarily geared toward helping patients resume daily living tasks - bathing, feeding, dressing and other household activities - in accordance with their disability. This discipline also assists patients in simulation of movements and activities related to specific occupations," she said.

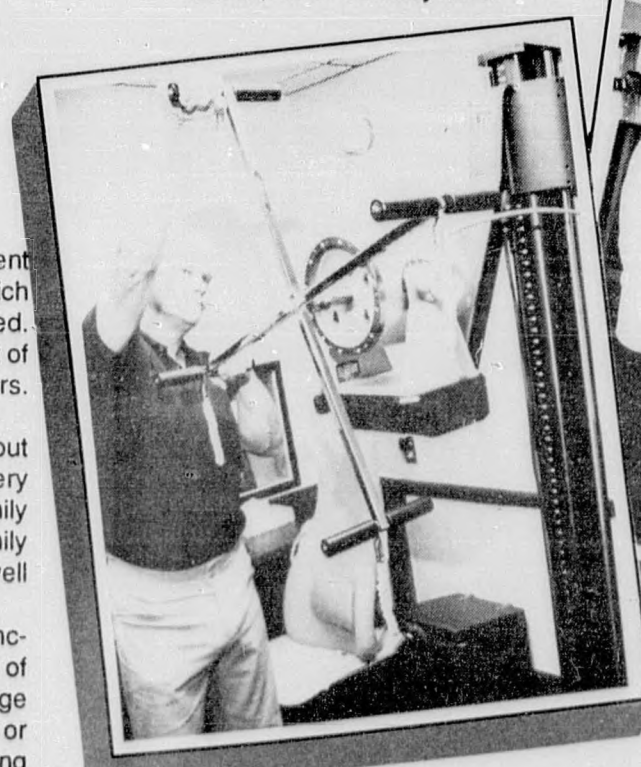

In some cases, occupational therapy works with hand injuries as well as injuries to other upper extremities by incorporating treatments which may include customized splinting and exercises to improve strength, range of motion and coordination.

According to Mrs. Fendley, speech pathology, the newest therapy available at the Medical Center, is designed for patients with a speech, language or oral motor dysfunction. "These disabilities may have been present at birth or the result of an injury or illness. The speech therapist works with patients to help them improve their communication skills whether that be their verbal communication skills or some kind of assistive device," she added.

Mrs. Fendley said that while the majority of patients receiving rehabilitation services at the Medical Center are physical therapy patients, occupational therapy and speech therapy are becoming recognized as integral components of the recovery process.

"The Medical Center is committed to meeting the healthcare needs of the community and rehabilitation services will be expanded in the coming year to meet that growing need," she said noting, "and the upcoming expansion project should facilitate the emphasis on our team approach by locating all three disciplines within the same area."

"We are excited about the direction rehabilitation services has taken over the past 20 years. What started as a small physical therapy department has now grown into a comprehensive rehabilitation division that provides not only inpatient but outpatient services as well," Mrs. Fendley said.

Sports Health '91

A one-day seminar designed to educate and update coaches, trainers, physical education teachers and pre-hospital provider personnel in the treatment and prevention of sports injuries.

Participants will get a broad range of information relating to sports medicine. A few of the topics include athletic strengthening and conditioning, treatment and rehabilitation of back and neck injuries, heat exhaustion and fluid replacement, the asthmatic athlete, and emergency treatment on the field.

THE POWER TO HEAL Ancient Arts & Modern Medicine

Southeast Alabama Medical Center will showcase The Power To Heal: Ancient Arts and Modern Medicine on Friday, September 20, 1991 through Sunday, October 6, 1991.

In the fall of 1989, a team of more than one hundred of the world's most famous photojournalists embarked on a mission -- to capture the extraordinary realm of health, healing, and medicine, and to show in vivid and fascinating photographs the ancient rituals that have led to today's medical technology. At the same time, a group of equally celebrated writers captured the essence of healing in words. The result is "The Power To Heal" by Rick Smolan, Philip Moffitt, and Matthew Naythons, M.D., Prentice Hall Press.

The exhibition tells a story about courage, faith and caring that healers witness every day. The images explore the diversity of healers and healing practices around the world, illustrating that understanding of the word, "healing" varies greatly.

The Power To Heal is an extraordinary look at the emotions, the mystery, and the many different faces of health, healing and medicine around the world. Breathtaking original photographs, detailed captions, and illuminating essays combine to present a unique and hopeful portrait of humanity's age-old fascination with the body and how to keep it healthy.

More information on this International Exhibit will be made available in early September.

Sports medicine keys: Early detection, proper assessment

While sports trainers and physicians have been involved in some form of sports medicine for decades, recently there has been a greater emphasis placed on sports injuries and their prevention nationwide.

D. Keith Granger, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon in Dothan, Ala. attributes this emphasis to television media's focus on organized sports in this country. Citing football in particular, he noted the trend in sports medicine is toward the prevention and early detection of injuries.

"One of the reasons for the Sports Health '91 forum on August 6 at the Medical Center is to give area sports educators and trainers an opportunity to learn how to better prevent and evaluate sports injuries from healthcare providers who treat these cases on a regular basis," Dr. Granger said.

Learning how to properly evaluate an athlete's condition or a sports injury is important not only from a liability standpoint but also because sports educators and trainers are the key to preventing minor injuries from becoming more serious injuries.

Noting he would rather see the athlete be more than less sensitive to the possible ramifications of a particular injury, Dr. Granger explained, "The real danger occurs when an athlete's injury is improperly assessed and determined to be insignificant, and the player is sent back out on the field where continued play could result in a second injury or aggravate the initial injury to the point of causing permanent harm. In those situations, some athletes may not be able to play that sport again."

According to Dr. Granger, "The prevention, evaluation and treatment of injuries is very sports specific. There are certain conditioning activities required for contact sports that are different from those required for non-contact sports. Some sports require more agility and mobility and if an injury occurs the type of sport involved makes a difference on when the athlete can return to the playing field."

As sports has become more organized and trainers have become more involved in the evaluation process, sports medicine physicians have started playing a bigger role not only in football, but in athletics in general. "The sports medicine physician establishes the injured player's rehabilitation schedule, monitors his progress, and determines when that player is ready to return to the field," Dr. Granger said.

Because no two sports injuries and players are alike, he added there is no standard established for when a player can return to a sport. The type of injury, the athlete's motivation during rehabilitation and the sport involved are all considerations to be weighed by the sports medicine physician. "Sports medicine physicians are aware of how detrimental it can be to a team's overall performance if an injured player has to sit out a few games or maybe a season, but with a player's whole life in front of him, proper recuperation is imperative," he added.

The majority of sports injuries - sprains, bruises - are considered minor and usually do not require much more than conditioning, splinting and proper rehabilitation. Occasionally, as in the case of knee ligament reconstruction, Dr. Granger and his partners, Drs. Cecil M. Sanders, William B. Hanson, John H. Haley, Jr., R. Bruce Hall and James P. Maddox, are required to treat sports injuries surgically. All members of their physician group, Orthopedic Clinic, P.A., are board certified orthopedic surgeons.

N. B. council informed of pending lawsuit filed in federal court

by Marvin McLwain
Editor

New Brockton's city council meeting appeared to be of a routine nature Monday evening until just prior to adjourning. At the request of the city's attorney, Joe Sawyer, the council went into executive session before the motion was made to adjourn.

When asked by this reporter the reason for the executive session, Sawyer said that he would make a statement before the council meeting was concluded.

At the conclusion of the session, Sawyer stated that a lawsuit had been filed against the city of New Brockton by Priscilla Foster.

"We went into executive session for me to advise them (the councilmen) that there were several matters I needed to discuss with them," said Sawyer.

Sawyer said that he told the council that he would like to fully investigate the matter before giving them an opinion as to the direction they should take.

He stated that he received the suit in his office at approximately 10 a.m. Monday morning and had not had time to study it.

Earlier in the meeting, councilmen heard from several of the town's citizens and Mayor Jim Driskell signed a proclamation.

Mayor Driskell was joined by Ken Farris as he proclaimed Sunday, August 11, 1991, as "United Way Sunday." Also the months of August, September, and October are "United Way—Caring for the Weak" in the City of New Brockton.

Penny Wright addressed the council concerning the Indian Employment & Training Act passed by the federal government.

She told councilmen that manpower was available to the city through this act either to perform specified duties or to be trained for specific duties.

The salaries for these persons are paid with funds made available to the Indian Nations by the above named act. There is no expense to the city.

Wright stated that those persons participating in the program as employees must be of Indian descent, but there is no specified degree.

Priscilla Foster sues New Brockton for a quarter of a million dollars

by Marvin McLwain
Editor

In Monday's New Brockton City Council meeting, Joe Sawyer, the city's attorney, informed the council that New Brockton was being sued for a quarter of a million dollars.

Sawyer received notice at 10 a.m. Monday of a suit filed in United States District Court - Middle District of Alabama on July 29, 1991 by Priscilla Foster.

Named as Defendants in the lawsuit are the City of New Brockton, Police Chief Richard L. Nichols, Patrolman Kenneth Jackson and Jerry Gilbert.

In the suit, Foster asks for the sum of $150,000 as compensatory damages, $100,000 as punitive damages, and other relief as law and equity allows including cost and reasonable interim and final attorney fees pursuant to 42 U. S. Code Section 1988.

The suit alleges that on or about November 24, 1989 while driving a friend to get his car, Mrs. Foster was struck by a patrol car being driven by Officer Jackson.

According to Foster, the officer pulled her friend from the car and at the same time, she asked him why he had struck her car.

As the series of events continued, Mrs. Foster alleged that she was told to shut up or be arrested. She stated that after expressing her expectations that Jackson pay for any damages done to her car, she was grabbed by Jackson and handcuffed with the assistance of Officer Gilbert.

The Plaintiff, Priscilla Foster, further alleges that during the arrest and detention at the police station, her clothing was pulled down leaving her breasts exposed to the police officers and others present.

She states that she remained partially nude for some 30 to 40 minutes before her mother, Alma Hornsby, arrived and insisted that she be covered. She later fainted and was taken to an Enterprise hospital.

Foster states in the suit that Chief Nichols was present at the station during the time the alleged events were occurring and did not intervene.

The Plaintiff contends that as a result of these events, she injured her shoulder, strained muscles, and had a loss of sensation in her arms. In addition to these physical problems, she states in the suit that she has undergone emotional and mental problems as well as sexual problems with her husband.

In the above incident, Foster was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. She was found guilty on both charges in municipal court on February 14, 1990. The lower court's verdict was later appealed to Circuit Court where it was upheld.

On July 31, 1991, the U. S. District Court for the Middle District of Alabama, Southern Division, denied Mrs. Foster's motion for preliminary injunction relief stating that she, the Plaintiff, had offered no evidence in support of her motion.

The City of New Brockton and the other named Defendants have 20 days from August 2, 1991 to answer the complaint (lawsuit) which has been served upon them.

On Monday, August 5, 1991 at 4:36 p.m., in an unrelated incident Priscilla Foster and her husband, Brent Foster, Jr., were both arrested and charged with harassment by the Enterprise Police Department.

The arrest resulted after police officers answered a disturbance call at Lot 3, Roll-In in Enterprise.

According to police reports, Mrs. Foster allegedly attempted to strike Brent Foster, Jr. with a pair of scissors after a verbal altercation.

Hocutts place a city limits sign at north edge of town

The "Elba City Limits" sign has been placed on a massive display of city signs from all over the world. The sign post forest which surrounds the visitor's center at Watson Lake, Yukon Territory, Canada, is that city's best display.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hocutt were 1942 by a homesick GI assigned to able to place the Elba City Limits sign on June 21st while they were on a seven week, 14,000 mile vacation tour of Canada and Alaska.

One of the highlights of their trip was to spend the night (without darkness) of June 27 at the Arctic Circle in Alaska.

During 1991, Canada and Alaska will be celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Alaska Highway. The Hocutts stated that anyone planning to visit that area next year should take into consideration the expected "double" number of tourists and realize that facilities will be at a premium.

They also reported that gasoline in Canada sells for over $2.00 per gallon.

Mrs. Hocutt attaches sign "right in the middle" of site in Canada's Yukon Territory.

For more information concerning the incident should call Crimestoppers at 347-STOP or 897-3881 or call the Coffee County Sheriff's Department at 897-5012 or 347-2616.
